NEW ZEALAND—NORTH AND SOUTH ISLANDS.

Storm signals at certain light-houses.

THE British Admiralty has given notice (No. 721 of 1899) that on and after the 18th October 1899, the following weather forecast signals will be exhibited from the undermentioned light-houses, viz.:—

NORTH ISLAND.

Cape Maria van Diemen, in lat. $34^{\circ} 28' S.$, long. $172^{\circ} 39' E.$
Tiri Tiri „ $36^{\circ} 36' S.$, „ $174^{\circ} 55' E.$

SOUTH ISLAND.

Cape Campbell, in lat. $41^{\circ} 43' S.$, long. $174^{\circ} 18' E.$
Cape Foulwind „ $41^{\circ} 45' S.$, „ $171^{\circ} 29' E.$
Fairwell Spit „ $40^{\circ} 33' S.$, „ $173^{\circ} 1' E.$

The weather signals consist of two symbols, a black cone and a black drum. The cone is 3 ft. high and 3 ft. wide at the base, and the drum is 3 ft. high and 3 ft. wide at either end.

These symbols will be used either with or without a red pennant; they will be shown to all vessels passing within signal distance, and between the hours of 8 A.M. and 6 P.M., unless the wind at the station is too strong.

Mariners are cautioned that weather forecast signals for the day are not to be considered as covering a distance greater than a radius of 200 miles from the place at which they are hoisted, and those made with the red pennant under as covering only a radius of 50 miles from the place at which they are hoisted.

If the symbols are not displayed, mariners desirous of obtaining information as to probable changes of weather are requested to use the International Code signal for that purpose.

The weather forecast for the day will be forwarded from Wellington as soon as possible after 10 A.M., except on the following days:—All Sundays, Christmas Day, Boxing Day, New Year's Day, Good Friday, Easter Monday, and the Sovereign's and Prince of Wales's Birthdays. Such messages ought to reach their destination, at latest, about noon on the day they are issued.

The red pennant hoisted below any weather signal made between the hours of 8 A.M. and noon will always indicate that such signal belongs to the forecast of the previous day.

Weather signals without the red pennant will always indicate that the forecast belongs to the day upon which they are hoisted.

The red pennant, when hoisted alone, will indicate that the forecast for the day has not been received from Wellington.

Whenever the wind at any of the signal stations has changed in such manner that the forecast for the previous day will not apply, no symbol will be displayed until the forecast for the day has been received at the station.

EXPLANATION OF SIGNALS.

Moderate Weather.

This will be indicated by the International Code signal.

CAUTIONARY SIGNALS.

Northerly Gales.

The cone hoisted point upwards will denote that strong winds or gales are probable from the northward—that is, from about north-east, changing by the north towards west.

N.B.—This change of wind is usually followed by strong winds or gales from the southward.

Westerly Gales.

The cone hoisted point downwards will denote that strong winds or gales are probable from the westward—that is, from about west, changing by the south west towards south.

N.B.—After these gales have moderated the wind generally backs to the north-west or to the north; but should the southerly gale continue for a longer time than usual, the wind may be expected to work round as far as south-east.

Easterly Gales.

The cone hoisted point upwards with the drum below will denote that strong winds or gales are probable from the eastward—that is, from about north, changing towards the east and south east.

N.B.—This change of wind denotes a black north-easter and an approaching cyclone.

NEW ZEALAND—NORTH AND SOUTH ISLANDS.

Storm signals at certain light-houses.

THE British Admiralty has given notice (No. 721 of 1899) that on and after the 18th October 1899, the following weather forecast signals will be exhibited from the undermentioned light-houses, viz.:—

NORTH ISLAND.

Cape Maria van Diemen, in lat. $34^{\circ} 28'$ S., long. $172^{\circ} 39'$ E.
Tiri Tiri „ $36^{\circ} 36'$ S., „ $174^{\circ} 55'$ E.

SOUTH ISLAND.

Cape Campbell, in lat. $41^{\circ} 43'$ S., long. $174^{\circ} 18'$ E.
Cape Foulwind „ $41^{\circ} 45'$ S., „ $171^{\circ} 29'$ E.
Fairwell Spit „ $40^{\circ} 33'$ S., „ $173^{\circ} 1'$ E.

The weather signals consist of two symbols, a black cone and a black drum. The cone is 3 ft. high and 3 ft. wide at the base, and the drum is 3 ft. high and 3 ft. wide at either end.

These symbols will be used either with or without a red pennant; they will be shown to all vessels passing within signal distance, and between the hours of 8 A.M. and 6 P.M., unless the wind at the station is too strong.

Mariners are cautioned that weather forecast signals for the day are not to be considered as covering a distance greater than a radius of 200 miles from the place at which they are hoisted, and those made with the red pennant under as covering only a radius of 50 miles from the place at which they are hoisted.

If the symbols are not displayed, mariners desirous of obtaining information as to probable changes of weather are requested to use the International Code signal for that purpose.

The weather forecast for the day will be forwarded from Wellington as soon as possible after 10 A.M., except on the following days:—All Sundays, Christmas Day, Boxing Day, New Year's Day, Good Friday, Easter Monday, and the Sovereign's and Prince of Wales's Birthdays. Such messages ought to reach their destination, at latest, about noon on the day they are issued.

The red pennant hoisted below any weather signal made between the hours of 8 A.M. and noon will always indicate that such signal belongs to the forecast of the previous day.

Weather signals without the red pennant will always indicate that the forecast belongs to the day upon which they are hoisted.

The red pennant, when hoisted alone, will indicate that the forecast for the day has not been received from Wellington.

Whenever the wind at any of the signal stations has changed in such manner that the forecast for the previous day will not apply, no symbol will be displayed until the forecast or the day has been received at the station.

EXPLANATION OF SIGNALS.

Moderate Weather.

This will be indicated by the International Code signal.

CAUTIONARY SIGNALS.

Northerly Gales.

The cone hoisted point upwards will denote that strong winds or gales are probable from the northward—that is, from about north-east, changing by the north towards west.

N.B.—This change of wind is usually followed by strong winds or gales from the southward.

Westerly Gales.

The cone hoisted point downwards will denote that strong winds or gales are probable from the westward—that is, from about west, changing by the south-west towards south.

N.B.—After these gales have moderated the wind generally backs to the north-west or to the north; but should the southerly gale continue for a longer time than usual, the wind may be expected to work round as far as south-east.

Easterly Gales.

The cone hoisted point upwards with the drum below will denote that strong winds or gales are probable from the eastward—that is, from about north, changing towards the east and south-east.

N.B.—This change of wind denotes a black north-easter and an approaching cyclone.

M. surveying vessel "Dart," reports that, when making a further examination of the Shoal Patches referred to in Notice No. 17, issued from this Office on the 25th October last, he found another coral head, about two yards in diameter, with only 18 feet over it at low water. The minimum depth given in Notice No. 17 should therefore be 18 feet instead of $4\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms.

Commander Parry also reports the existence of a shoal patch in the following position, viz. :—

Ead Reef Beacon—S. $36^{\circ} 45'$ W., distant 1 mile $5\frac{6}{10}$ cables.Eff Reef Beacon—S. $80^{\circ} 25'$ W., distant 4 miles 4 cables.Sea Reef Beacon—N. $86^{\circ} 10'$ W., distant 4 miles $4\frac{7}{10}$ cables.Latitude $14^{\circ} 3' 15''$ S.; Longitude $143^{\circ} 55' 42''$ E., approx.

This shoal has 4 fathoms over it at low water, except at its southern end, where there is a minimum depth of only 16 feet. It is $1\frac{1}{2}$ cables long (north and south) and $\frac{3}{4}$ cable wide (east and west). Soundings of from 8 to 10 fathoms were found round the patch, which lies on the same bearing from Ead Beacon as the Taiwan Shoal, but is $4\frac{1}{2}$ cables to the northward of it. An even bottom of 10 fathoms (mud) exists between the two shoals.

Also, a shoal between Ead and Jee Reefs, in the following position, viz. :—

The weather signals consist of two symbols, a black cone and a black drum. The cone is 3 ft. high and 3 ft. wide at the base, and the drum is 3 ft. high and 3 ft. wide at either end.

These symbols will be used either with or without a red pennant; they will be shown to all vessels passing within signal distance, and between the hours of 8 A.M. and 6 P.M., unless the wind at the station is too strong.

Mariners are cautioned that weather forecast signals for the day are not to be considered as covering a distance greater than a radius of 200 miles from the place at which they are hoisted, and those made with the red pennant under as covering only a radius of 50 miles from the place at which they are hoisted.

If the symbols are not displayed, mariners desirous of obtaining information as to probable changes of weather are requested to use the International Code signal for that purpose.

The weather forecast for the day will be forwarded from Wellington as soon as possible after 10 A.M., except on the following days:—All Sundays, Christmas Day, Boxing Day, New Year's Day, Good Friday, Easter Monday, and the Sovereign's and Prince of Wales's Birthdays. Such messages ought to reach their destination, at latest, about noon on the day they are issued.

The red pennant hoisted below any weather signal made between the hours of 8 A.M. and noon will always indicate that such signal belongs to the forecast of the previous day.

Weather signals without the red pennant will always indicate that the forecast belongs to the day upon which they are hoisted.

The red pennant, when hoisted alone, will indicate that the forecast for the day has not been received from Wellington.

Whenever the wind at any of the signal stations has changed in such manner that the forecast for the previous day will not apply, no symbol will be displayed until the forecast for the day has been received at the station.

EXPLANATION OF SIGNALS.

Moderate Weather.

This will be indicated by the International Code signal.

CAUTIONARY SIGNALS.

Northerly Gales.

The cone hoisted point upwards will denote that strong winds or gales are probable from the northward—that is, from about north-east, changing by the north towards west.

N.B.—This change of wind is usually followed by strong winds or gales from the southward.

Westerly Gales.

The cone hoisted point downwards will denote that strong winds or gales are probable from the westward—that is, from about west, changing by the south-west towards south.

N.B.—After these gales have moderated the wind generally backs to the north-west or to the north; but should the southerly gale continue for a longer time than usual, the wind may be expected to work round as far as south-east.

Easterly Gales.

The cone hoisted point upwards with the drum below will denote that strong winds or gales are probable from the eastward—that is, from about north, changing towards the east and south-east.

N.B.—This change of wind denotes a black north-easter and an approaching cyclone.

He was born in 80, and poisoned in 150 Hijirá at the instance of the Emperor Mansur. His compilation of the Feká (Civil and Criminal law of Islam) is the most authoritative and his memory is still cherished by his co-religionists for his extraordinary learning and piety. The book is written in fairly good Bengali.	5916

Feb. 22nd	164	12mo dy	1st...	500	ditto	The Author, Masjidbári Street, Calcutta.	Is an historical drama of which the plot is as follows:—The Queen Reziá who ascended the throne of Delhi in succession to her brother Raknuddin, had two generals, one a Hindú, named Virendra Sinha, and another a Tartar, named Bakhtiyár. As the queen was unmarried, all her courtiers, including the two generals, had to lead a single life on pain of losing their heads. But Virendra secretly married Indirá, daughter of the Chief of Saurástra, whom her father had intended for his general Samarendra Sinha. For fear of offending the queen, Virendra keeps his bride secluded within the walls of the fortress of Kusumpur and pays her secret visits. He rose high in the queen's favour, and had also a place in her affections. But unlike his Tartar colleague, he never cherished the ambition of becoming her husband. At an entertainment given in honour of the generals on their return from a successful expedition, the queen gave unmistakable proof of her sentiments towards Virendra by presenting him with her own necklace and putting it round his neck with her own hands. But this made no difference in his attitude towards the queen. As regards Bakhtiyár, she rejected his advances with scorn and contempt. At this stage Virendra's secret leaked out, and his bride was secretly removed from the fortress by the queen's order. The queen next proposed to Virendra, and being rejected, ordered him to be put to death, and her order was carried into effect. The Tartar had longed for revenge, and now joined the queen's rebellious half-brother Bairám, who also enlisted the sympathy and co-operation of Samarendra, the disappointed lover of Indirá. In the war which followed, the queen was defeated and taken captive. She committed suicide in prison, preceded by Indirá and Samarendra. The plot is borrowed from Scott's Kenilworth, and Reziá, Virendra and Indirá stand for the Queen Elizabeth, the Earl of Leicester and Lady Dudley, respectively. The characters of Reziá, Virendra and of the unfortunate lady Indirá are very well-drawn. The author is a good poet, and the play abounds with passages of real beauty and imagery.	5918

April 2nd	16	8vo dy	1st...	3,000	Printed.	0 1 0	The Author, Hugli.	Is a description of a journey to the shrine of Tarakesvar on the night of the fast of Sivaratri made by a fashionable lady and her husband. It is a series of realistic sketches put together without any regard for decency and decorum.	5920
" 6th	130	12mo dy	1st...	500	ditto ...	0 8 0	Hari Charan Chaudhuri, Rajgram, Katulpur.	A Bengali translation in prose and verse of Kalidás's well-known drama. It is a very modest performance and can not lay claim to any special merit.	5921
Mar. 6th	56	12mo dy	1st...	3,000	ditto ...	0 4 0	Haridás Pál.	Is a social drama of which the plot is as follows:—A man brings up an orphan girl and bestows some care on her education, in order that she may fetch him a large sum when married. She was allowed to remain unmarried till she was sixteen, when a proposal for her marriage was received from a professional match-maker. The bridegroom-elect agreeing to pay down Rs. 500 to the father, the date for the marriage is fixed. At this juncture, the girl leaves her father's house, and elopes with her lover, turning a deaf ear to the entreaties of her adoptive father. The latter accepts the situation with the reflection that his disappointment and discomfiture are a just penalty for his folly in entrusting the education of her daughter to the ladies of the Zenana Mission. The book is a somewhat coarse satire on female education and female emancipation movements. The Bráhmós, as is usual in such cases, also come in for their due share of ridicule and obloquy. It is very indifferently written and full of coarse and indelicate sentiments.	5922
" 14th	30	12mo dy	1st...	500	ditto ...	0 2 0	The Author, 6, Dvāraká Náth Tagore's Lane, Calcutta.	Is a comedy of the type of A Midsummer Night's Dream, of which the plot is as follows:—The god Indra having given himself up to the pleasures of music and dancing to the neglect of his duties incurs the displeasure of the mischief-making sage Náradá. The sage forthwith gets up a quarrel between the ruler of heaven and his consort Sachí by hinting at his secret amour with the heavenly nymph Urvastí. Sachí indignantly leaves her husband's presence and scornfully repudiates all his advances towards a reconciliation. Cupid and Spring are ordered to leave the precincts of heaven, which for a time wears a dismal aspect. At this stage, Rati sets out in search of her husband Cupid, and induces both him and his friend and companion Spring to come back to heaven. The re-appearance of Spring is proclaimed by the notes of the cuckoo and other birds, and by the return to new life of plants and animals. But Sachí still remaining obdurate, Cupid lets one of his flower arrows fly at her, and this produces the desired effect. Her anger and indignation melt away, and she longs for her husband's company. Indra again makes his advances, which are accepted this time. Heaven now resounds with joy and merriment, and all memory of the temporary misunderstanding is wiped out.	5923

1899.	Pages.					Rs. A. P.
Feb. 25th	164	12mo dy	1st...	1,000	Printed.	1 0 0	Vijay Krishna Mukherji.	An historical novel describing the conquest of Orissa by Kálápáhár under Suleman Keráni, the Páthán ruler of Bengal, Navadvípa. His original name was Niranjan, which was changed to Kálápáhár on his conversion to Islam. While studying with Harádeva, he went to Tanda, capital of Bengal, to complain to the king against the conduct of a certain Kazi. But his suit was unsuccessful, and he was thrown into prison. He regained his liberty through the favour of the king's niece, Naziran, and married her with the king's consent. Becoming thus a Muhammadan, apparently, through no fault of his own, he vowed eternal vengeance on the gods and goddesses, who had rewarded, as he thought, his life-long devotion to them with dishonour, degradation and loss of caste. Henceforward, he came to be known as the deadliest enemy of Hindu idolatry. At the time when the story opens, he was entrusted with an expedition against Orissa. Whilst preparations for the expedition were being made, his brother Prabhát went to Orissa with a cross-purposes. At Puri Prabhát met with a Bengali girl, who, as it turned out afterwards, was no other than Harádev's daughter, whom the father was forced to leave behind, while attacked by dacoits at Bhuvaneswar. The young people had begun to love each other when Prabhát was called to Jajpur and elected commander-in-chief of the Uriya army. In the war which followed, he fought bravely and performed prodigies of valour, but was defeated and taken captive in the end. He was brought before his victorious brother, recognised and set free with honour. Ushá, as Harádev's lost daughter was named, had also been taken captive and shared the same prison cell with her lover. She also was recognised and made over to her father Harádeva, who had followed his ex-pupil to Orissa, in the hope of recovering his daughter some day. She was married to Prabhát, and the latter declared heir to the conqueror of Orissa. In the midst of these acts of amnesty, Kálápáhár died of the wound received in the late war, and was followed by his faithful Naziran. His death brings the story to a close. The plot is well conceived and well-conducted, and the delineation of the characters of Ushá, Kálápáhár and Prabhát shows considerable art and skill. The book is written in good Bengali.	5926
1898 Dec. 2nd	122	12mo dy	1st...	500	ditto ...	0 12 0	Is a collection of five short stories, of which the longest and perhaps the most interesting is that headed Yogamáyá. It is the story of a lady with hypnotic powers, named Yogamáyá and a crack-brained scientist, named Páglábábá, whose sole aim in life was to revive the dead and to make the living immortal. Yogamáyá met Vasanta Kumár at Beneras and fell in love with him. But Vasanta had set his heart on Prabhávatí and did not care to return Yogamáyá's attention. He had however, lost all trace of Prabhávatí and sought the aid of Yogamáyá in finding her whereabouts. The latter, who also wanted Prabhávatí on her own account, found her out with the aid of Páglábábá and delivered her up to him hypnotised. Páglábábá had invented a new apparatus for the circulation of blood, and wanted human blood to work it. So Prabhávatí was freely bled, and when a sufficient supply for the apparatus had been collected, Yogamáyá tried her skill in reviving her, but failed. At this juncture Vasanta suddenly appears in the scene, and his cries bring a Mahátmá to the rescue of the dying girl. The girl promptly revived under the Mahátmá's treatment, and Vasanta departed with her. The Mahátmá was the Guru of Páglábábá and Yogamáyá and they both asked his forgiveness for what they had done. They were told by him to devote themselves to acts of merit and meet him on the Himálayas after a year. There they met him in due time and were told to pass their days in repentance, as the only means by which they could get rid of their sin.	5927
1899 Mar. 4th	360	12mo dy	New and revised	1,000	ditto ...	1 8 0	The Author, Varáhanagar.	The book originally appeared in 1887, and was noticed in this Library Catalogue for the 4th quarter of the year, as Bengali Book No. 6724. The present is a revised and enlarged edition but the plot is substantially the same. The revision cannot, however, be said to have removed the faults of style, which are many and serious, while the introduction of new matter cannot be said to have improved the plot in any way, which is as improbable, incoherent and as badly handled as ever.	5928

Feb. 18th	270	12mo dy	1st...	1,000	ditto ..	1 4 0	The Author, 199, Darmahata Street, Calcutta.	Is a hand book of Hindu medicine in popular Bengali, treating of the diseases of the chest	5967
and the urinary system. Both in its arrangement and methods of exposition, the book is immeasurably superior to most of the treatises of its class. The writer is conversant with the principles of Western medicine and his description of the different organs of the body, and the diseases they are prone to contain frequent references to the writings of standard European authors. The introductory chapter on the principles of Hindu therapeutics known as the Sutra-sthan is an attempt, and a very successful attempt, at explaining the real significance of Vāyu , Pitta and Kapha , ordinarily known as the three humours and the part they are supposed to play in the human economy. The book is written on altogether new and scientific principles and is likely to revolutionise the methods of studying Hindu medicine.

March 2nd	8	12mo dy	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	1 0 0	Garudās Chatterji, 201, Cornwallis Street, Calcutta.	Gives, in the form of a connected narrative, a series of vivid realistic sketches depicting the character and conduct of the lower ranks of railway employees, from the jemadar to the native station master. Their ignorance, their dishonesty, their petty dodges to cheat the passengers, their insolence towards the general public, and sycophancy towards the European are mercilessly expressed. The hardship of their lot, the indifference of the authorities, as the writer thinks, in the matter of ameliorating it, are all taken note of. The incidents described are in the majority of cases funny in the extreme, and the interest in the narrative is well sustained. It is written in a good, popular style.	5971

The book is extremely interesting reading and written in fairly good and correct Bengali.	5988
Feb. 13th	341	8vo dy	1st...	500	ditto...	Chandra Kánta Tarkálankár, 109, Muktarám Babu's Street, Calcutta.	Containing a lucid and careful exposition of the fundamental principles of four among the six systems of Hindu philosophy, viz., Vaiseshika, Nyáya, Sánkhyá, and Pátanjala. Of these four, Vaiseshika and Sánkhyá have been treated at a greater length than Nyáya, while of Pátanjali, which takes its principles from Saukhyá, the out lines have only been given. The most interesting portions of the book are perhaps those where the old controversy between Gárgya and Sákatiyán about the origin of names is discussed, and where Kanád's theory about the physical constitution of the Universe is sought to be justified on principles of modern science. The aim and scope of Hindu philosophy in general and of each school in particular form part of a separate lecture. The contents of the present volume are apparently meant as an introduction to the writer's exposition of Vedánta, which is to form the subject matter of the next volume. The learned author may be congratulated on the way in which he has tried to popularise the doctrines of Hindu philosophy among his countrymen.	5989

Mar. 25th	58	12mo dy	1st...	500	ditto ...	0 4 0	The Author, Burdwan.	The story of a poor beggar woman and her daughter told in Blank Verse. The woman Vāmā used to support herself and her infant daughter Bālā by begging. She used to beg all day and to return home in the evening. One day, getting no alms anywhere, she went to a Rājā's house, where preparations were being made for a feast; but struck by a durwan, she fell under the wheels of a carriage and was killed on the spot. Her death brings the story abruptly to a close. The writer is very hard on rich people, who, he thinks, are devoid of even ordinary virtues of humanity. He has evidently taken Wordsworth for his model, and his language is at times very homely and colloquial.	5992
April 6th	24	12mo dy	1st...	1,000	ditto ...	0 2 0	The Editor, Meherpur.	A collection of Vaiṣṇava songs, mostly on the subject of Kṛiṣṇa's amour with Rādhikā, by old Bengali poetesses, one of whom at least, viz., the washer-woman Rāmi was a contemporary of the oldest Bengali poet Chāṇḍidās.	5993
Mar. 3rd	156	12mo rl	1st...	500	ditto ...	1 8 0	The Author, Calcutta.	Is a book of lyrics beautifully got up and illustrated with numerous woodcuts. Many of the pieces in this book are of great beauty and originality, showing that the writer possesses poetic powers of no mean order. But the poem is not free from obscure passages and faults of grammar due, no doubt, to his neglect of the classical model. The book is styled Padmā , because there is, as the writer fancies, a parallel between the waves of that river and the 'mental-currents' which the sight of the former gives rise to in him.	5994
June 1st	237	8vo dy	1st...	500	ditto ...	Nil.	The Author, Sadikhāndiār.	Is a poem in blank verse describing the defeat and death of the demon Naraka by Kṛiṣṇa. Through the favour of	5995

Siva, Naraka defeated the gods and forcibly took away the ear-rings from the person of their mother Aditi. Indra thereupon went to Bramhā (the Creator) to seek his help in defeating the demon, and was referred by him to Siva. The latter again referred him to Kṛiṣṇa as being the only person who could defeat and kill Naraka. Indra then sought Kṛiṣṇa's aid, and in the war which followed, Naraka with his followers was defeated and killed. The versification of the poem is harsh and prosaic, and there is absolutely nothing to recommend either in the conception or in the delineation of characters. This is the writer's first attempt at writing poetry, and the attempt has been a failure. The poem is a very weak imitation of Michael Madhusūdan's Meghanādabadh.

Mar. 16th	278	8vo dy	1st...	5,000	Printed.	0 8 0	Vangiya Sāhitya Parishad, 106/1, Grey Street, Calcutta.	Is a Bengali version of the Mahābhārata by one Vijay Pandit similar to the one by the Kāsīdās. Vijay's date has not yet been fixed with accuracy, but the language of his poem, abounding as it does in archaic words and expressions, shows that he must have preceded Kāsīdās at least by a century. Vijay was a poet of no mean order, and his book possesses great philological value. The Vangiya-Sāhitya Parishad has, therefore, done a service to Bengali language and literature by rescuing the poet from oblivion. This part brings the story of the Mahābhārata down to the end of the Udyoga Parva.	6010

.....	150	12mo rl.	2nd...	1,000	ditto ...	1 0 0	Mukherji & Co., 8, Bowbazar Street, Calcutta.	It is a term of Hindu logic which has no equivalent in English. It has been defined as "the negation of certainty in regard to a conclusion, qualified by the negation of a desire for the inferential process." In other words, it means the existence, either of a desire for inference, no matter whether the thing to be inferred is already known or not, or of an uncertainty relating to the thing to be inferred, no matter whether the desire for the inference exists or not, or both. It gives the text of Gangesa, the notes on the same by Raghu Nāth Siromani and Mathura Nāth Tarkavāgis, and a commentary on Raghu Nāth's notes by Jagadīsa Tarkalankār. It is one of the text books on Hindu Nyāya and is extensively read by all students of Hindu Logic. It is a most difficult and abstruse work.	1626
